THE UNION

The first global health organization, our mission is to improve lung health among people living in low-resource settings.

The Union has drawn from the best evidence and the skills, expertise and reach of our staff, consultants and membership, who help to advance our mission.

For over 100 years, we have been leaders in the fight against some of the world's biggest killers, including tuberculosis, lung diseases and tobacco use.

ON-REQUEST & TAILORED COURSES

The Union faculty and staff are ready to help you design courses and curriculum to meet your specific training needs. With expertise in the clinical, programmatic, and organisational management of disease our team has designed programs for some of the leading lung-health organizations in the world. We specialize in programs designed to reduce the burden of lung disease, improve overall lung health, and end TB in low-resource settings. Courses can be developed in English, French, and Spanish.

THE UNION APPROACH

The Union provides distinguished faculty and facilitators to create tailored courses and follow-up that fit your organisation's individual programme needs. Our training, based in science and needs assessment, combines the clinical, programmatic, and organisational management of disease to reduce the burden of lung disease, improve overall lung health, and end TB.
